58th Annual Meeting

Inflammation: A Goldilocks Story

Call for Partners

Following in the long tradition of SLB, this meeting will showcase the latest scientific advances in understanding fundamental immune mechanisms of leukocyte biology in health and disease. This meeting will bring together leukocyte biologists who work in a transdisciplinary fashion to conduct basic, clinical, and/or translational research. The Meeting offers a variety of partnership opportunities to support the conference while promoting your organization, research, and products. At SLB meetings, our partners are valued participants and are provided with the same experience as all attendees.
